

Get a University of Windsor Degree While Studying at Lambton College!

The three-year Bachelor of Arts Degree Program in Liberal and Professional Studies is an interdisciplinary studies general degree program for students who desire a university education combining a solid academic core grounded widely in the social sciences, arts, sciences, and business. This degree program embodies the character of a traditional liberal arts education set in a contemporary academic and social context. Critical thinking, problem solving and communication skills are all key components of this degree. The Conference Board of Canada states that these are the essential employability skills for the future. This degree program is a collaborative venture between Lambton College and the University of Windsor.

Students will be able to apply to Faculties of Education (Primary-Junior) from this program, or change into General and Honours B.A. programs with specific majors. Without losing credits, students can move to the following programs on the University's Windsor campus:

B.A. General programs:

Anthropology, Communication Studies, Dramatic Art, History, Liberal and Professional Studies, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, Women's Studies.

Honours B.A. programs:

Anthropology, Classical Civilizations, Communication Studies, English Language and Literature, History, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, Women's Studies